Message from the Secretary

For many reasons, this third week of June was filled with plenty of memorable moments. On Monday, I was invited to Philadelphia for a media event where Independence Blue Cross and ChenMed announced their new partnership designed to improve health outcomes of low-income seniors. Independence Blue Cross is the largest health insurance organization in southeastern Pennsylvania, and ChenMed is a Miami-based, physician-led, family-oriented organization committed to bringing superior healthcare to the neediest populations.

ChenMed founder, Dr. Jenling James Chen, was diagnosed with cancer almost ten years ago and given two months to live. During his care, Dr. Chen experienced firsthand the frustrations associated with navigating the healthcare system. While fully recovered today, his personal journey on the receiving end of patient care allowed Dr. Chen and his family to experience the challenges that many healthcare consumers face on a regular basis. The struggle to access quality, empathetic, and well-coordinated care fueled his relentless determination to turn the current healthcare delivery system around. As a result of that experience, Dr. Chen created the ChenMed model, which is built upon listening, talking, and building a relationship with each patient. ChenMed hails itself as being an accountable and compassionate physician-led culture.

During Monday's event, Daniel J. Hilferty, President and CEO of Independence Blue Cross, and Dr. Chen described their collaboration that will create four new Dedicated Senior Medical Centers in Olney, North Philadelphia, Mayfair, and West Philadelphia. As a subsidiary of ChenMed, the Dedicated Senior Medical Center brand is a unique model of high-quality care. Responding to the many health and social conditions that affect seniors in Philadelphia is the target of this partnership, as according to data from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Philadelphia County, when compared to the other four counties served by Independence Blue Cross, has the highest prevalence of Medicare beneficiaries with six or more chronic conditions, such as high blood pressure, arthritis, diabetes, and asthma, as well as the highest 30-day hospitalization readmission rate for beneficiaries with chronic conditions. We all know that no one wants a cookie-cutter offering of where they should live or what their healthcare should look like, and this partnership that will open four Dedicated Senior Medical Centers builds on the Wolf Administration's commitment to enabling Pennsylvanians to age in place by preventing the instability of health and wellness. The four physician-led Dedicated Senior Medical Centers will offer onsite specialist doctors, medication dispensing, X-rays, screenings, transportation to and from appointments, increased face-to-face time with physicians, and well-being classes. We look forward to the opening of these centers later this summer and applaud Dr. Chen and Mr. Hilferty for their visionary leadership and commitment to senior healthcare.

On Tuesday, I journeyed to Washington, D.C., where I had the awesome privilege of representing the Wolf Administration during the U.S. Special Senate Committee on Aging's hearing – Changing the Trajectory of Alzheimer's: Reducing Risk, Detecting Early Symptoms, and Improving Data. The committee is chaired by Senator Susan Collins (R-Maine), while Senator Bob Casey (D-Pennsylvania) serves as the Ranking Member. Prior to the hearing, I met with nearly 50 Pennsylvanians who joined more than 1,200 Alzheimer's Association advocates on Capitol Hill for individual meetings with Members of Congress during the 30th Annual Alzheimer's Association AIM Advocacy Forum, which is the nation's premier Alzheimer's disease advocacy event.

During our informal gathering, several members of the Pennsylvania contingency shared their personal stories of living with Alzheimer's disease. Two advocates, Tom and Phil, shared how they were diagnosed early--Tom at age 60, and Phil at age 56. Each gentleman courageously shared their desire to change the face of Alzheimer's disease as they advocate, hope, and pray for a world without this devastating disease. Another advocate, Jim, shared how his wife was also diagnosed early following two car accidents in 2013. While she passed from the disease last year, Jim passionately described how so much more needs to be done to educate and prepare caregivers and families as Alzheimer's changes the family dynamic socially, emotionally, and financially. Additionally, I met Michelle, who shared how her brother and mother died from the disease. They, too, were in the prime of their lives when Alzheimer's altered their family forever. Michelle shares the gene that she anticipates will impact her life plans as well, and she and her husband passionately described the need for palliative and hospice care at the end of life. Many others who gathered for the hearing shared their stories with me, and several assured me that they 'had my back' as I prepared to represent them and all Pennsylvanians during my testimony presented before the committee.

During the hearing, a main theme of the advocacy message was to secure funding for the BOLD Alzheimer's Act, which has bi-partisan support. The BOLD Act would create the public health infrastructure needed to combat Alzheimer's and preserve brain health by establishing Centers of Excellence in Public Health Practice dedicated to promoting Alzheimer's disease management and caregiving interventions, as well as educating the public on Alzheimer's disease and brain health. Needless to say, the sea of purple humanity that filled the Dirksen Senate Office Building was an inspiration to witness. Together, let's continue to fight for a cure for Alzheimer's. Finally, I share with you what was perhaps the most memorable part of my week, which occurred on Wednesday, June 20 – the day that marks the one-year anniversary of my mom passing from this world to the next. The year of firsts: first holidays, first birthdays, first anniversaries, first everything's without mom, grandma, aunt, sister, and friend, concluded. My mom would have enjoyed becoming a great grandma to a beautiful little girl, Riley Anne, who was born three weeks ago. Riley Anne, whose mother is my niece, has red hair just like her mother and myself. My mom would have lovingly welcomed her newest red-haired baby girl to the family. While it's been a sad, difficult, and challenging 365-day journey, I have also been amazed and overwhelmed by the kindness received from family, friends, and people whose lives were touched by the woman they knew as Bette-O. During the Alzheimer's hearing on Tuesday, as mentioned, purple was the color to wear as it is the color worn by Alzheimer's advocates. I wore my purple shirt and socks in solidarity with thousands of others, and I wore a bracelet of my mom's – a silver bangle that has multiple tiny, purple amethyst stones throughout. Amethyst is associated with the month of February, which is the month my parents were married 61 years ago. To be certain, Bette-O was with me in every word spoken before, during, and after the hearing.

On another very personal note, I remember the first phone call I received after my mom passed. It was from Governor Wolf expressing his and the First Lady's sympathies on my family's loss. I will always be grateful for the governor's kindness and support during that time. So yesterday afternoon, when we learned that his mother, Cornelia Rohlman Westerman Wolf, died at her home in Mt. Wolf at the age of 94, I immediately thought of my mom and the governor's kind words to me in those first hours after her passing. In announcing his mom's death, the governor issued this statement, "My mother's strength anchored our family, and we are heartened that many Pennsylvanians were able to experience her spirit and joy in these last few years. Our family will deeply miss my mother, but we know our remembrance of her will bring us comfort during this difficult time." While arrangements are pending, the Wolf family has asked for privacy at this time. I shared with the governor the same words I shared with my brothers on Wednesday as we marked the first year without our mom--wherever a beautiful soul has been, there is a trail of beautiful memories.
